

Villa 134

A family home finished from the front door to the roof terrace, with calm materials, careful light and built-in joinery in every room.

One home, finished to a single standard

Villa 134 shows the quality we deliver. Every space in the house, from the reception hall to the maid's room, was designed and finished by our team as one complete project.

The house is built around a light palette of travertine, polished marble, natural oak and brushed brass. Joinery is made to measure throughout: open shelving in the living room, full-height wardrobes in the bedrooms, a library wall in the office and a walk-in closet in the master suite. Lighting is layered in every room, with recessed spots, hidden cove strips and statement pendants, so each space works by day and feels warm at night.

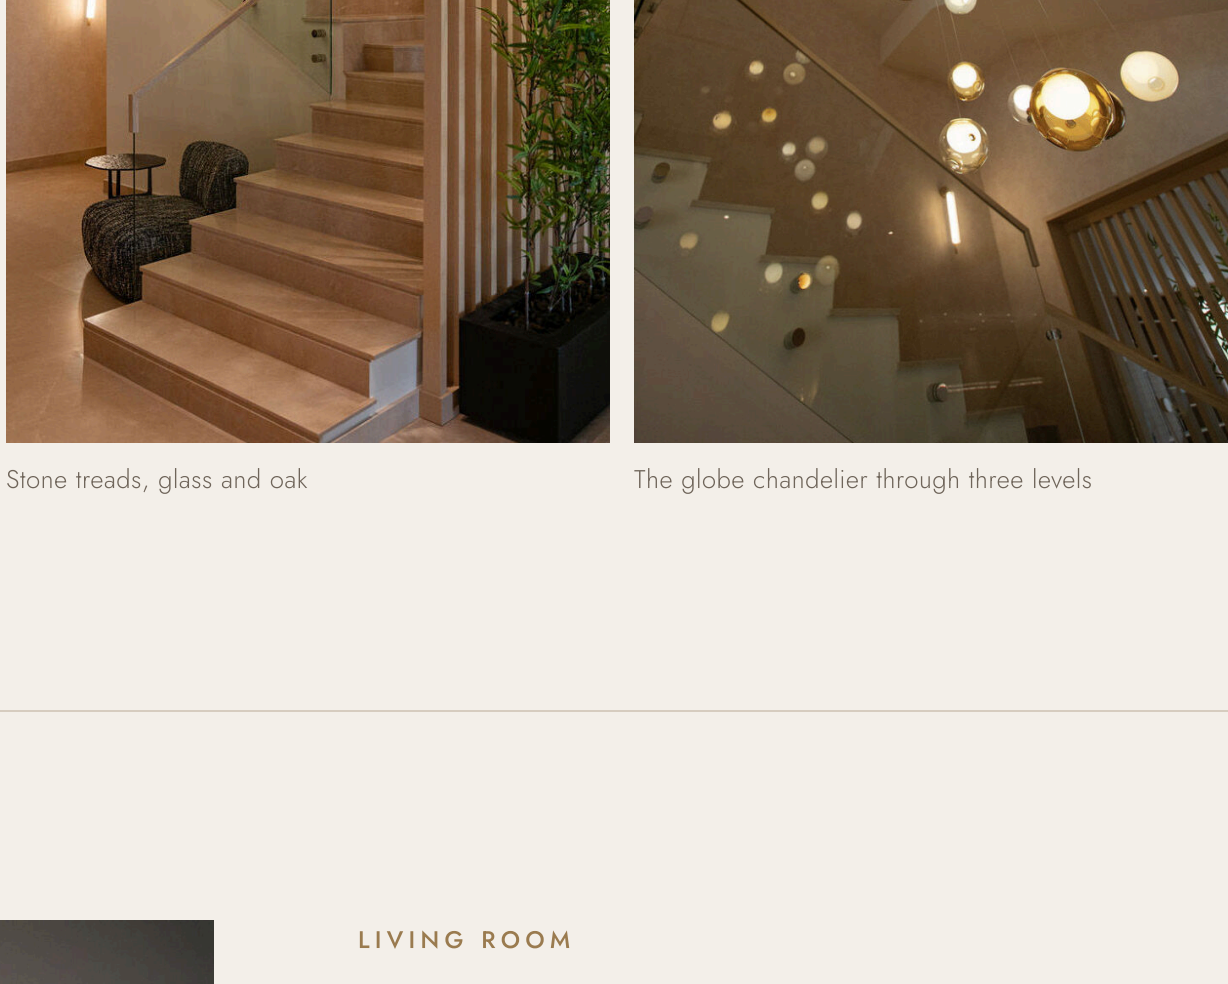

Across 550 m² on two floors and a roof level, set on a 600 m² plot, the villa holds a reception hall, a living room, a formal dining room, a main kitchen, a home office, a master suite, two children's bedrooms, a guest room, a maid's room, an upstairs kitchenette and a guest lounge on the roof.

An entrance hall built around the staircase

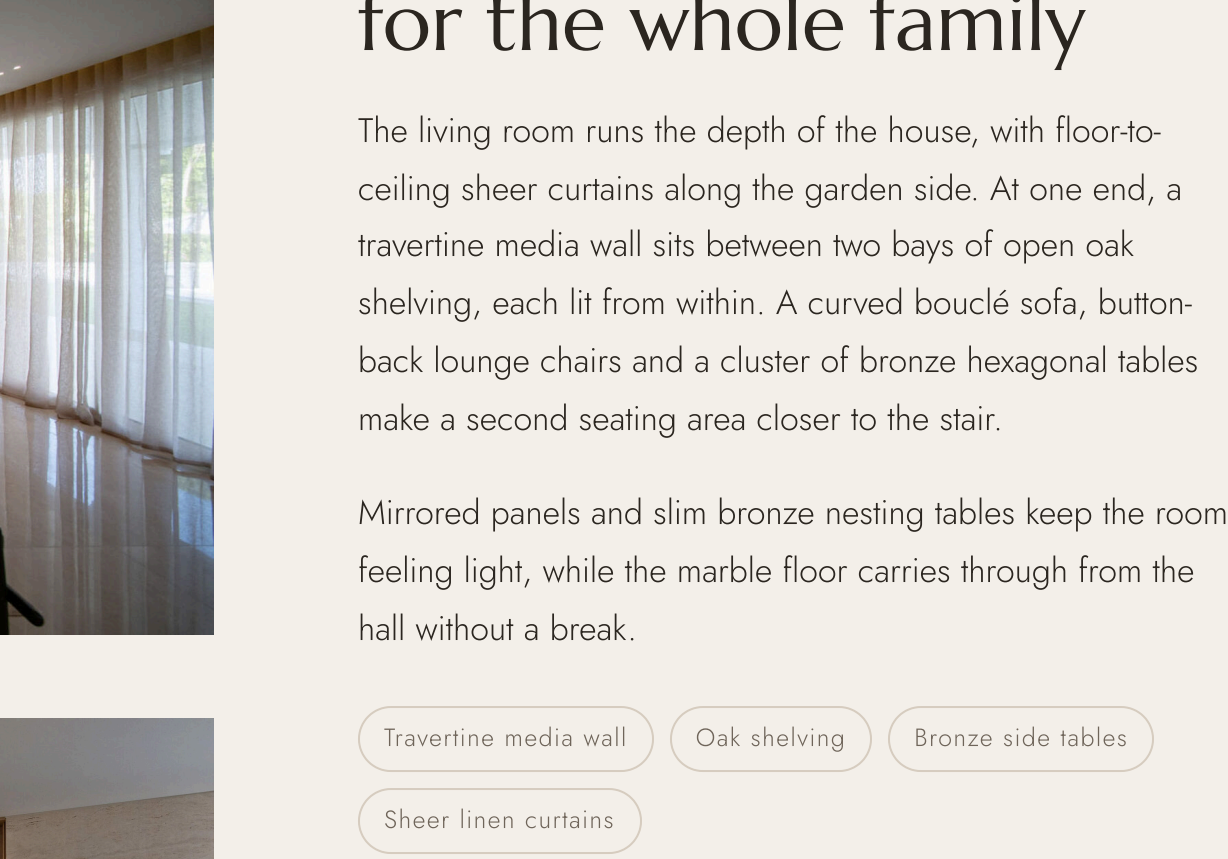

The front door opens into a double-height hall lined in travertine, with bronze-framed display shelving on either side. A floating stone staircase with a frameless glass balustrade rises through the house, and a cascade of hand-blown glass globes hangs through all three levels of the stairwell.

A slatted oak screen frames the stair and lets you see through to the living room beyond, so the hall feels open while still marking the arrival.

LIVING ROOM

A long, bright room for the whole family

The living room runs the depth of the house, with floor-to-ceiling sheer curtains along the garden side. At one end, a travertine media wall sits between two bays of open oak shelving, each lit from within. A curved bouclé sofa, button-back lounge chairs and a cluster of bronze hexagonal tables make a second seating area closer to the stair.

Mirrored panels and slim bronze nesting tables keep the room feeling light, while the marble floor carries through from the hall without a break.

DINING AND KITCHEN

Formal dining and a working kitchen

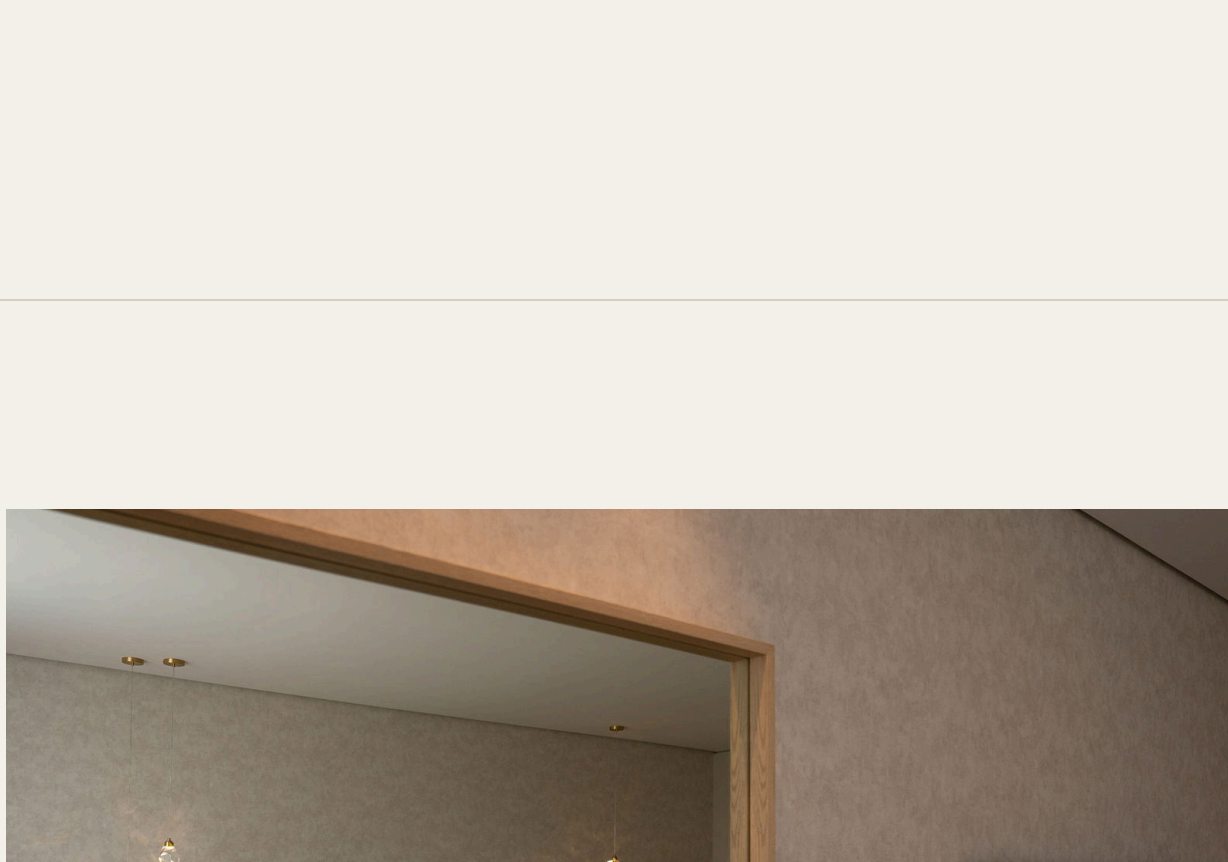

The dining room seats ten at a glass-topped table under a long linear crystal pendant. Sculpted metallic mirrors and tall palms soften the room, and a walnut console holds serving pieces.

The main kitchen is made for everyday cooking. Handleless white cabinets run the full length of the room, with warm oak upper units and lighting hidden underneath. A waterfall island with bar stools sits in the middle, alongside a double-door refrigerator, built-in ovens and an induction hob.

HOME OFFICE

A quiet study with a library wall

The office is set apart from the family rooms, with oak flooring, a dark executive desk and two curved guest chairs. The back wall is a full-height oak bookcase with LED strips set into every upright, and a brass linear pendant hangs over the desk.

A large abstract artwork and a fiddle-leaf fig give the room character without distracting from work.

MASTER SUITE

A private suite with its own closet and bath

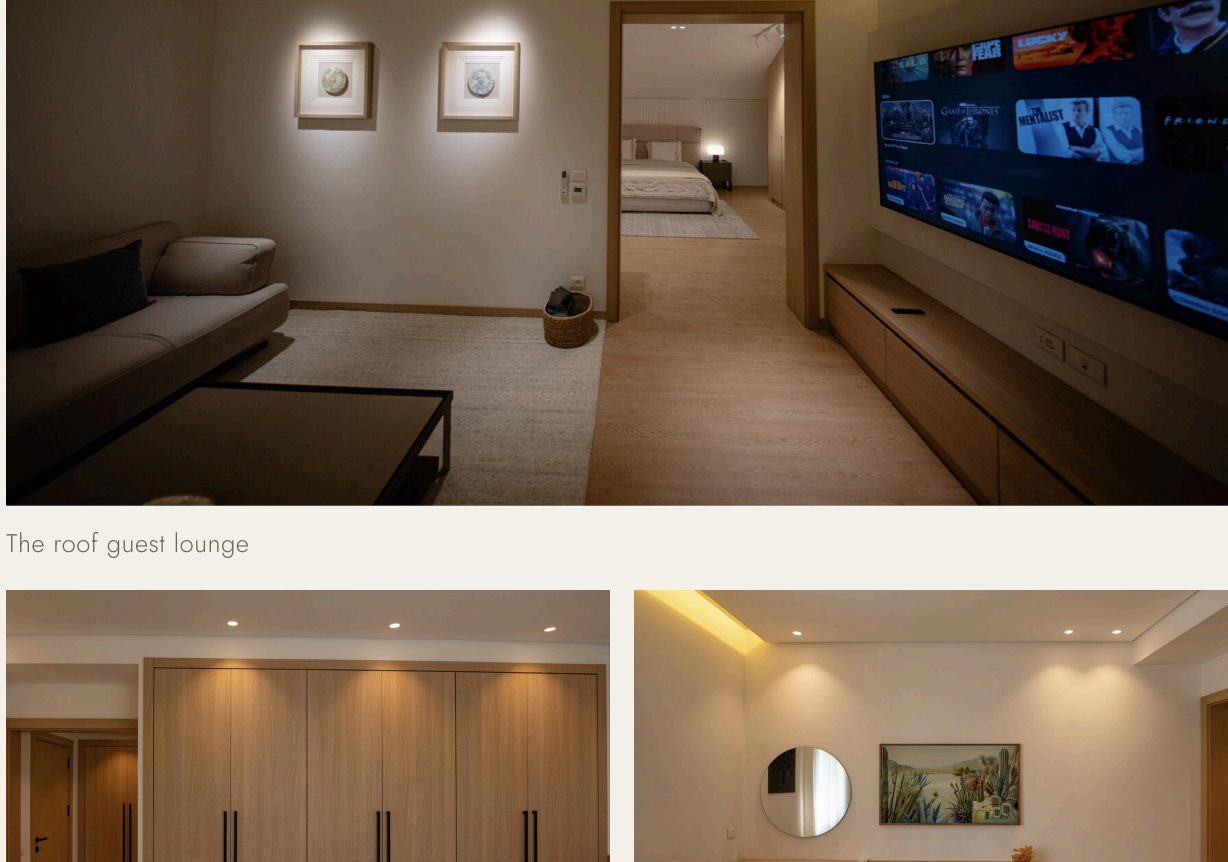

The master bedroom is calm and soft: textured plaster walls, a padded headboard, oak bedside tables and faceted crystal pendants on each side of the bed. An oak-framed mirror reflects the room back on itself.

A walk-in closet lined with smoked-glass wardrobes leads to the bathroom, which has a floating oak double vanity, a whirlpool tub set on a teak deck under a lit cove, and a rain shower.

CHILDREN'S ROOMS

Two bedrooms made for growing up

Each child has a room shaped around their own taste. The daughter's room is in soft blush tones, with a quilted headboard, glass globe pendants, a study desk and a dressing table with a lit Hollywood mirror.

The son's room is in calm neutrals, with a full wall of built-in wardrobes, a desk under floating oak shelves and plenty of floor space to play. Both rooms have oak floors, sheer curtains and hidden cove lighting.

GUEST ROOM AND ROOF LOUNGE

Space for family and friends to stay

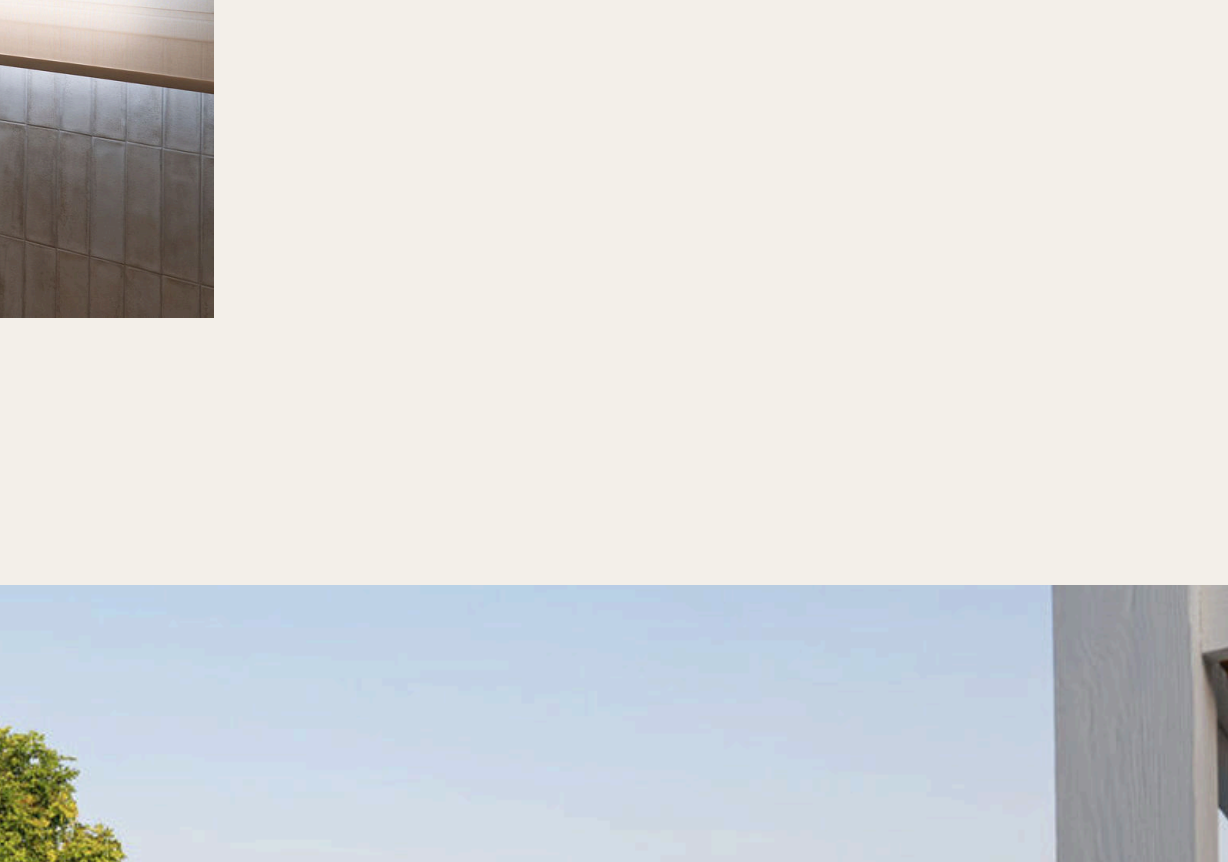

The guest room is warm and simple, with oak wardrobes with black bar handles, an oak-panelled wall behind the bed and a dressing table under a round mirror.

Up on the roof, the guest lounge has a slatted oak ceiling with warm cove lighting, a large screen and low seating, making a relaxed place to gather away from the main floors.

Pool, pergola and planted paths

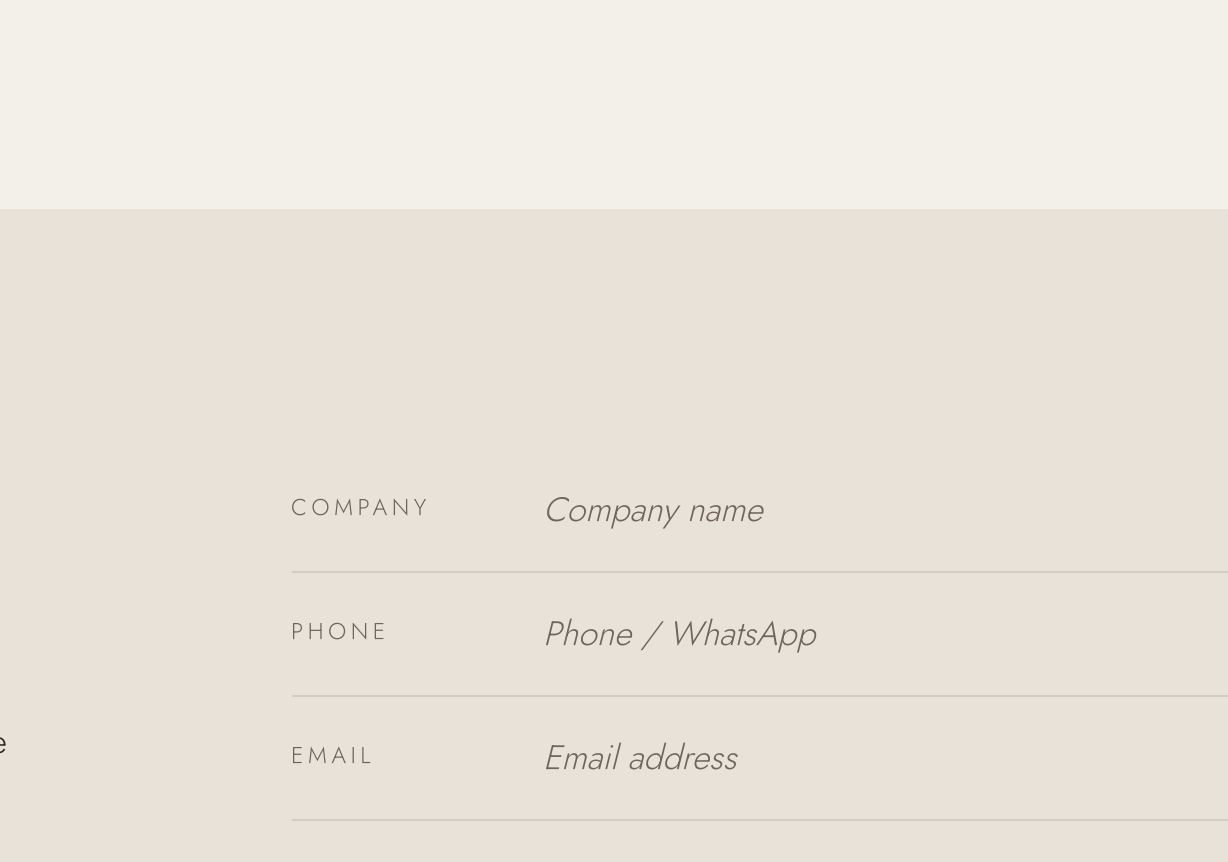

The pool is finished in blue glass mosaic, with a built-in step and seating ledge for the children. A white pergola with timber slats shades a lounge on the travertine deck, and outdoor sofas and parasols sit along the water's edge.

Along the side of the house, stepping-stone paths run through lawn and dense planting under a row of timber portal frames with built-in lights, turning a service passage into a garden walk.
